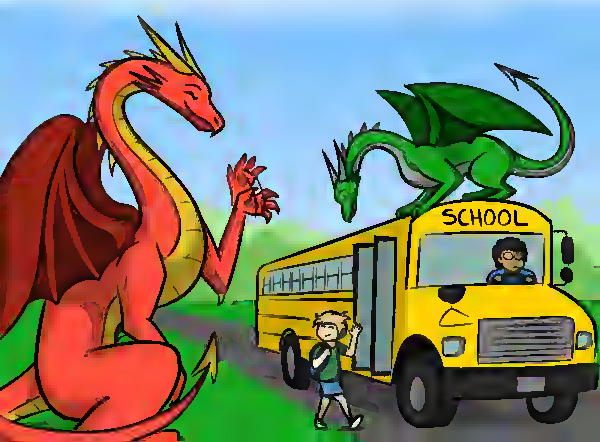
As a young boy, I was raised by dragons. Strange, I know... But they loved me dearly.

My mother thought it best that I learned to live as a human. At the age of ten, she sent me to school for the first time.



Predictably, I didn't make friends easily.
A lifetime of hoarding gold and breathing fire made it difficult for me to fit in.

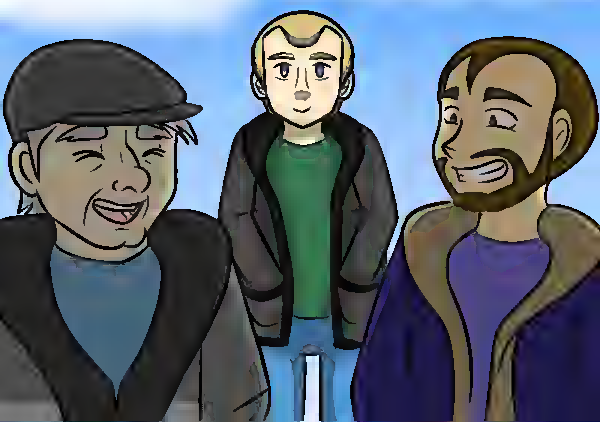
As I grew older, I learned to curb some of my more... dragonish tendencies. And now that I'm an adult, I manage to live a fairly normal life.



But sometimes...
